We have posted various resources and information regarding liturgical observations with the election of our new pope on the liturgy website:

Please note that the Supreme Pontiff is referred to as “Pope Francis” – there is no “first” until there is a second.

VERBUM DOMINI – THE WORD OF GOD IN THE LIFE AND MISSION OF THE CHURCH

Part II: Verbum in Ecclesia

The Holy Father begins this section (“The Word in the Church”) by reminding us that the Church receives the word. Likewise, as the gifts are prepared at Mass, we are reminded that what we offer is first of all gift: “Blessed are you, Lord God of all creation, for through your goodness we have received the bread we offer you... for through your goodness we have received the wine we offer you....” That’s what it means to be a creature: all that we have and are is a gift from God, calling forth a response.

How do we respond to the gift of God’s word? Do we, as the Pope says, allow ourselves to be shaped by this word, to thereby become a new creation (50)? Or do we harden our hearts to it? There is a great dynamic tension here: we are free to receive or reject this word. How will we choose? God’s definitive utterance of the Word in Christ Jesus is not a one-time event lost in the past. Rather, as Pope Benedict says, “The relationship between Christ, the Word of the Father, and the church... is a living relationship that each member of the faithful is called to enter into” (51). In a striking passage, Pope Benedict states: “In the word of God proclaimed and heard, and in the sacraments, Jesus says today, here and now, to each person: ‘I am yours, I give myself to you’ so that we can receive and respond, saying in return, ‘I am yours’” (51). So, it is the liturgy that is the privileged locus of encounter with the divine Word. That encounter transforms us; and having received such a gift we make the return gift of living Eucharistic lives. We are called to respond to the word by proclaiming it in turn to the world. Listening first, we become heralds of the Gospel. Part II continues with a deeper exploration of the liturgy, which we will cover next month.

PREACHING THE MYSTERY OF FAITH: THE SUNDAY HOMILY

Preaching does not occur in a vacuum. The preacher must be attentive not only to the local community—and to the liturgical feast—but also to the wider culture. Preaching in the United States will necessarily be different than preaching in Argentina... or the Philippines... or Tanzania... or Japan.

Before setting out their teaching on the Sunday Homily, the US Bishops provide a ‘snapshot’ of the cultural milieu in which we preach, and the challenges that this milieu raises for the proclamation of the Good News. They note that many Catholics (perhaps especially among younger generations) are indifferent to or disaffected with the Church and her teachings, for a variety of reasons. While they mention the scandal of sexual abuse within the church, they also note the strong emphasis on the individual over the community, the focus on material satisfaction over the spiritual life, and a spirit of relativism that denies the possibility of absolute truth or enduring values that color life in this country. The Bishops also observe that the sharp polarizations in our political life, the growing gap between rich and poor, and the persisting racism and prejudices which color our common life also affect parishes as well. Further challenges to preaching the Gospel include the cultural and ethnic diversity found in many of our parishes as well as a tendency for many Catholics to be uninformed about the Church’s teaching.

It is in, and into, this context that we preach, a context that makes it difficult to hear the Good News. Therefore, the US Bishops are calling for a renewal in the preaching ministry—including the spirituality of the preacher.
